ROYAL DIARY IN EUROPE.

(From our Engopean Correspondent. LETTER No. 52 .- LONDON, July 15th, 1881. THE ROYAL PROGRESS-THE KING IN ITALY-INTERVIEWS WITH KING UMBERTO AND POPE LEO XIII-FROM ROME TO LONDON.

Through the courtesy of a member of the Royal suite I have been furnished (as your correspondent and expressly for this paper) with full details in regard to the King's movements since his arrival in Europe, which I hasten to lay before the readers of the P. C. ADVERTISER.

The King's landing at Naples took place on June 30th, as before described. Next day at 11 A. M., the King, accompanied by the gentlemen of his suite and his charge d'affaires, Cavaliere G. P. Ginstini, paid a visit to the Museo, where he was received by the Vice-Director Felice Niccolini, who acted as cicerone for the Roya! party. The King passed nearly two hours in the Museum, examining the collections of antiquities with great interest, especially the Hall of Bronzes and the Pompeiian collections. He expressed great regret, that his limited time would not allow him to visit Pompeii. At 2 a clock the King and suite, in full uniform, went in carriages to the Royal country seat at Capo di Monte, to pay a visit to King Umberto. They were received by the aide de camp on duty and ashered into the great hall, where the King and Queen of Italy appeared immediately afterwards. The interview lasted about 20 minutes and took place in English, Queen Margherita acting as nterpreter, as King Umberto speaks but very little English. He is a pleasant, affable gentleman, but his portraits somewhat exaggerate the size of his mustaches. At half-past 2 King Kalakana and suite returned to the Hotel Royal des E rangers. His Majesty has been presented with the order of " Cavalieri Salvatori della Alpi Marittime," by the King of Italy, also one for a framed portrait of King Umberto, drawn by hand, and also a pen and ink sketch portrait of himself (a perfect likeness) from a general of the

to the inumerable palaces and churches of Naples, and at 3 r. w. the Royal party left this place by train, arriving at Rome at 10 P. M. without public ceremony and finding excellent quarters prepared for them at the Hotel du

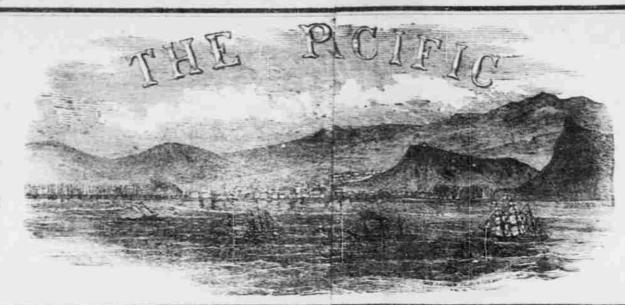

At 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon the King was received in audience by H. H. Pope Leo XIII. His Majesty, attended by Col. Armstrong and Col. Judd, entered the Audience Hall, accompanied by Cardinal Jacobini, the Secretary of State to the Vatican, and Cardinals Caracci and Howard, Immediately after their arrival, the Pope entered alone, bowed slightly to those present and seated himself in a great ivery chair, placed on a dais. He was attired in a white surplice, with a gold chain and cross inlaid with jewels around his neck. The King and attendanis were presented by Cardinal Jacobini, and King in London. Cardinal Howard acted as interpreter. After kessing the Pope's hand, His Majesty presented the Lord Bishop of Arathea's letter, which His floliness accepted and perused at once. A conversation then ensued on several topics, but more especially on the prosperity of the Hawaiian Islands, the faithfulness of a part of the people to the true church, &c. The Pope also presented His Majesty with his photograph. After. half an hour's duration the audience came to an end, His Holiness bestowing the Pontifical blessing on the Royal party and expressing his sincere well wishes for the King, his country and his people. The rest of the day was occupied by visits to St. Peter's, the galleries, the Coliseum,

The Royal party left Rome at 2 r. M., on July 4th, reached Lyons next afternoon at 4, changed curs for Paris and arrived at this place at 5 A. M. on the 6th. A number of gentlemen, including the Consul-General of Hawaii, received them at the depot. After breakfast at the Hotel, the King and suite passed a few hours in a hurried drive through the principal quarters of the French capital and viewing the most important points, including the Tuilleries, Place de la loneorde, Champs Elysèes, Arc de Triomphe, the Boulevards, Colonne Vendome, the Opera, &c. At Il o'clock the Royal party left Paris for London, arriving at Folkestone at 6 P. M. and descending at Claridge's Hotel at London

LETTER No. 53 .- LONDON, JULY 16, 1881. THE ROYAL PROGRESS.-THE KING IN ENGLAND. I continue my report of the King's movements as turnished by a member of the Royal suite for this paper. At 6 o'clock in the evening of July 6th the Royal party arrived at Folkestone from Rome via Paris. The King was received on the pier by Mr. Robert Follett Synge, of the Foreign Office, who has been selected by Earl Granville to attend upon His Majesty during his stay in this country, and by Mr. Hoffnung, who in 1862 as British Commissioner brought the silver urn as a present for H. M. Queen Emma for the Prince of Hawaii. The special mail train was waiting, with a Royal carriage attached, and as the King entered it, he was presented by Mre. Hoffnung with a beautiful bouquet of English roses. On the way to London a splendid lunch was served in the Royal coach, and on arriving at the British Metropolis at 8 P.M. the King and his attendants were conveyed in Her Majesty's carringes to Claridge's Hotel. Shortly after His Majesty's arrival Sir Charles Dilke, the Under Secretary of State, called. Next day the King rested from his rapid journey of 54 hours and received a number of visitors, a full list of whom for this and the following days has already been communicated. In the evening he went to see  Roberto il Diavalo" at the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden, being taken with his suite from his hotel and back in a Royal carriage. A guard of honor was drawn up before the Opera House and another stationed outside Her Majesty's box, which had been placed at the King's disposal. On being asked, during the performance, to name a piece for the next day, His Majesty expressed a wish to hear Madam Adelina Parti. 'Accordingly the Dira sang Margherita in " Faust" before the King on Friday night. After the performance His Majesty with the attending gentlemen paid Madam Patti a visit in her private green room to express his thanks, when she told him she had now had the honor of singing before all crowned heads, and that this evening had completed her list of Royal auditors. On Saturday, July 9th, the King attended the great Volunteer Review at Windsor. His Majesty arrived at Windsor Park at 10 o'clock in Sir Thomas Brassey's carriage and took lunch in Lady Brassey's tent, where he met a large party. After Sir Thomas' toast of " The King," which was duly honored, His Majesty proposed the health of " The Queen., One of Her Majesty's carriages then arriving the Ring and his suite were taken into the reserved Royal enclosure, where the best view of the parade could be had. At 5 o'clock punctually the artillery salutes announced the Queen's arrival and as her carriage passed by the King, both sovereigns exchanged bows. Then began the march-past of the regiments, over 100 in number. After the Prince of Wales had passed at the head of the Hon. Artillery Company, of which he is nonorary Colonel, he came up to the Royal standard in his scarlet uniform and bearskin cap, and after shaking hands with King Kalakaua, entered into a short convereation, in the course of which he invited His everywhere.
